Alcala challenges Villegas for a seat

On the local June 3 ballot is the District 1 seat of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors. The district includes Clarksburg and all of West Sacramento except for a slice of the city's northwest, near Reed Avenue.

That seat is now held by Oscar Villegas, recently appointed to fill a vacancy.

This week, we talk to his challenger for reelection, Norma Alcala. We'll invite Villegas for a similar chat next week.

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

There are several strong reasons why Norma Alcala is running for Yolo County Supervisor—in particular, for the seat now held by Oscar Villegas.

"We need a full-time supervisor," she told the News-Ledger last week. "I believe that Mr. Villegas has a very strong conflict. He's holding down two full-time jobs and he's getting two full-time salaries. He makes $101,000 as a field director for the (state) department of corrections, and the supervisor job pays very, very well—about $100,000 with benefits and all. To me, that's double-dipping. The other supervisors have other jobs, but they're not government jobs."

But is Villegas doing a good job as a supervisor? Alcala referred to his recently-ended stint on the West Sacramento city council:

"In 13 years of being on the city council, in my opinion, he's just been a rubber stamp for the mayor," said Alcala.

She also believes the currently-all-male board of supervisors could use some gender diversity.

"I think it's a fine board," she commented. "I'm just saying fresh ideas are necessary. It's important to have a woman's perspective—we're problem solvers."

Alcala, 53, is a native of Texas who came to West Sacramento in 1966. She first lived "on the wrong side of the tracks," and now resides with her husband in "The Rivers," a semi-gated subdivision in the Broderick neighborhood.

She and her husband own a business involved in ignition-lock devices that are sometimes court-mandated for DUI offenders; the devices won't let a vehicle start up if they detect too much alcohol on the breath. Although part owner, Alcala does not work full-time at the company.

She earned an "associate of arts" degree in political science at Sacramento City College, but left to help support her family. She's also attended some law school classes and worked for the state legislature ("on both sides of the aisle") for nine years.

"I've always been very active in the community," Alcala said. "I'm a member of the Chicano-Latino caucus of the California Democratic Party. We're a very strong caucus that is involved in immigration reform and other issues."

She supports, and is supported by, city council member Mark Johannessen—now running for state assembly.

Does she believe Yolo County is in good fiscal shape?

"Mr. Villegas said... that the supervisors have taken a vow of poverty," Alcala replied. "To me, that means there is going to certainly be more restraint. However, the governor told us that our fiscal future is looking much brighter... It's been managed as well as it can be, but there are other opportunities. I want to bring in more jobs."

Should those jobs be on county land—between the cities—in order to bring in cash for Yolo?

"We have the Williamson Act to protect us," she said, referring to a mechanism that tries to help ag land to remain ag land. "I think you do have to be open to all opportunities, and that's why you have a board. It's not up to one person to make a decision."

But she added that the county's current policy of maintaining open buffers between its cities "is the right approach."

Alcala is firmly against the governor's plan to build "tunnels" to help move water from the Delta area to Southern California.

"It would completely destroy our deltas and it would take all our jobs and water down south. One of my sons is a water engineer. They don't need the water down there."

She said the real problem is that water is being wasted.

"One of the things I think we should be doing is building our dams up higher—that would give

West Sac readies for new outdoor riverfront venue

Concert site, part-time beer garden may open in October

The West Sacramento City Council last week to approve spending about $2.6 million in "capital improvement project" funds toward a project designed to attract visitors to the city's developing riverfront.

The contribution will help build a $5.6 million outdoor venue called "The Barn," in conjunction with developer Mark Friedman and his Smart Growth Investors II, LLC. It's to be built across Garden Street next to the Riverwalk trail along the Sacramento River.

The project is meant to "evoke the agricultural heritage of West Sacramento," according to a city staff report. It includes a kitchen and meeting space and will also be operated as a beer garden when sufficient foot traffic is expected. It may also host farmers markets, concerts and other events. The facility will be operated by a vendor.

A city plan for its "Bridge District" authorizes up to $19.7 million in "backbone" improvements to Riverwalk, as well as another $46 million that could be spent on shade structures, piers, gardens, art and "distributed recreational elements."

The city revenue is "derived from Bridge District development," City Manager Martin Tuttle told the News-Ledger yesterday. It's not "general fund" money earmarked for uses such as police or fire protection.

The partners plan to have "The Barn" open this October. They've booked "The Launch," a three-day concert last year held in Sacramento, as an opening event.

The land is privately owned, and the deal approved by the council includes a lease and lease-back arrangement for 30 years.

Mayor Christopher Cabaldon abstained from last week's vote. He told the News-Ledger yesterday that while he had no legal "conflict of interest" to prevent him from voting, he is planning to move to a nearby development in the Bridge District.

"I thought it was better to abstain," he said.

The other council members present—Mark Johannessen, Chris Ledesma and Bill Kristoff—authorized city staff to finalize and sign the deal for public participation.

Practice for the real world

By Rebecca Schwartz
Journalism Class
River City High School

With little-to-no work experience and still-awkward social skills that make it difficult to portray the qualities that are desirable in a job, high school students find it hard to compete with more experienced adults.

On May 14th, Ronica Carlisle, River City High School Government and Economics teacher, invited West Sacramento Mayor Christopher Cabaldon, Human Resources Manager of Capitol Area Development, Jill Azuvedo, and the general manager at Wicked West Pizza, Michelle Van De Heetkamp to come and give volunteer students mock interviews, as if they were applying for a job.

Azuvedo explained, "I think it is important high school students learn [how to be interviewed] because it isn't taught in schools."

"This is very generous of them to do this," Carlisle commented to her class, prior to the interviews.

Students who volunteered before the event were

The pursuing officer pulled the woman over at Poplar and Michigan.

The woman "became immediately angry and refused to obey my commands and identify herself," reported the officer. She then put her hand in her purse—and drove away again at a "high rate of speed," running at least one stop sign.

Memorial Day: remembering a fine soldier

Note: With another Memorial Day Weekend just around the corner, I am reminded of a column I wrote decades ago about a fine young soldier who died in the Vietnam War. Although his name won't be found anywhere on the Vietnam Memorial Wall back in Washington D.C., it needs to be remembered anyway, and re-running this very old column is one small way of doing that.

Chin Nguyen was my Aero Rifle Platoon squad's Kit Carson Scout.

Kit Carson Scouts were repatriated Army of the Republic of Vietnam (A.R.V.N.) soldiers who had once fought on the side of the North Vietnamese-sponsored Vietcong. In Chin's case, he had spent much of his youth believing that Ho Chi Minh's nationalist/communist approach to his country's many problems would someday free him and his large family from a life of endless agricultural drudgery and poverty. In early 1969, at the age of 22, he reluctantly came to the conclusion that he had been wrong, and his entire family disowned him. Shortly thereafter, he joined the Army of the Republic of Vietnam.

"All my relatives call me traitor," he once told me. "My father shoot me dead if I go home."

When Chin was first assigned to our squad, he spoke very little English, but he spent most of his down hours pestering everyone in our hootch to teach him new words and it was amazing how quickly he learned. It wasn't long before he sounded like he had spent most of his life in Los Angeles, California, instead of Phu Loi, Vietnam.

Chin's private life quickly took a turn for the better, too. He met a pretty young Vietnamese girl named Hoa who worked in the base mess hall and it wasn't long before they were making plans to be married. Hand-in-hand, they would often stroll through the compound, oblivious to everyone else they passed and obviously very much in love.

Anything and everything about America excited Chin. Our language, our clothes, our music, and especially old television reruns and movies from the 1950s and 1960s. He was convinced that Gilligan's Island was a part of Hawaii and that John Wayne was a high-ranking officer in the U.S. military. His favorite exclamation, always delivered with a contagious smile, was "America numbah one!"

One evening, while waiting for someone to fix the base movie projector (which always broke down at least once during the viewing of any film), Chin looked over at me, his expression much more serious than usual, and said, "You very lucky G.I.!"

"Chin," I said, "I'm sitting on a rock-hard bench thousands of miles from home watching one of the worst movies ever made, and you think I'm lucky?"

"But when time up," he reminded me, "you go home to most wonderful country on earth." And when I returned his big smile, he added, "We trade, okay?"

"No thanks," I answered. "Too bad," Chin said with conviction, "because I make numbah one American!"

In the field, Chin was invaluable. He was only a few inches over five-feet tall and couldn't have weighed more than 125 pounds, but he was courageous to a fault and had an uncanny knack for being able to identify enemy ambushes before the actual shooting began. His ability to warn others of impending danger saved countless lives and it wasn't long before he was completely accepted by the entire platoon.

On the day I was wounded in Vietnam, so was Chin. He was placed on the stretcher above mine in a crowded med-evac helicopter which immediately lifted off and began racing towards a nearby aid station in a place called Lai Khe. I could tell by the way Chin's arm hung limply from his side the he was badly hurt. I called his name a couple of times, but he never answered.

Once in Lai Khe, I was whisked off the med-evac, placed on an even faster helicopter, and flown to a large American surgical hospital in Long Binh, where I quickly received the very best modern medical care. Chin, however, as I found out later, was trucked to a faraway, over-crowded Vietnamese hospital for A.R.V.N. soldiers where he died of a severe head wound only hours after he arrived.

Memorial Day goes all the way back to Decoration Day, which was established after the American Civil War to honor and remember both Union and Confederate soldiers who died in that bloody conflict. But throughout American history, its struggle for freedom has always been greatly assisted by complete strangers from faraway lands, be it the French who helped make possible the English surrender at Yorktown in the American Revolutionary War, or the Mexicans and Europeans who died alongside of Davy Crockett and Jim Bowie at the Alamo, or the countless other nationalities who helped bring both WWI and WWII to successful conclusions, not to mention the Koreans, Vietnamese, Iraqi and Afghans who have died trying to bring American freedom and democracy to their lands.

And although Chin never stepped foot on United States soil, he was absolutely right about the fact that he would have made a number one American!

Another issue facing Yolo County is the process of implementing "realignment" - which moves prisoners from state prisons to local jails or to release programs.

It's produced a high rate of recidivism among those criminals back on the street, she said. But some counties have been more successful than others, and "we should definitely be looking at successful models."

Is Alcala ready, as a county supervisor, to work with other regional officials on problems like solving homelessness and negotiating for new bridges on the West Sacramento riverfront?

Fairgrounds, fires

Our hearts go out to the people of San Diego and the team at the county fairgrounds. With the wild fires burning rapidly through the county, more than 500 horses have already been evacuated to the Del Mar Fairgrounds along with sheep and llamas. The county fair is only 20 days away and the staff at the San Diego fairgrounds has said no one will be turned away.

Fairgrounds have a history of taking in people, pets and livestock when there is a disaster, whether it is a fire, flood or earthquake. Our fairgrounds and 75 others in the state are always ready to serve as a sanctuary or a command center for emergency personnel such and firefighters, Red Cross volunteers, police, paramedics and other public safety officials.

This year, many of our fairgrounds will be put to the test. With California in the worst drought on record, it has become a virtual tinderbox. Since all fairs in California gave up 100% of our state support in 2011 at the height of the economic crisis, many are struggling to maintain their infrastructure. Several of the fairgrounds in our immediate area have had to lay off staff and work with part-time CEOs in order to make ends meet.

We are blessed to have leaders within our community who recognize the value of our fairgrounds. I have been especially impressed with our local and state elected officials who grasp the quiet, but vital role fairgrounds play in our community.

In just the last few weeks, Senator Wolk has graciously stepped forward in support of an effort to restore critical funding to repair the aging infrastructure at California fairgrounds, and a bi-partisan group of 31 other California legislators are making it a priority to invest in repairing and upgrading severely neglected infrastructure. From plumbing and electrical projects to repairs of grandstands and water conservation projects, there is no shortage of fairground needs.

And, with the Governor's recent good news about the surplus of state funds, serious consideration should now be given to repairing infrastructure at California's network of fairgrounds.

We are proud to serve this community and to offer one of the last remaining free gates. We made a lot of painful sacrifices during the last three years, but want to continue to provide clean, safe, family-friendly entertainment for our community. Let's save our fairs.

The woman said that, the previous night from about 10 p.m. to 10 a.m., her live-in boyfriend had kept her prisoner and abused her in their West Capitol home.

The 35-year old suspect

"punched her and kicked her repeatedly to the point that she lost consciousness," an officer reported, and also threatened to kill her and choked her. The man took the woman's cell phone and forced her to remain naked in the bedroom.

When he went out for cigarettes in the morning, she dressed and escaped.

The officer noted that the woman had bruises "all over her body." She had two black eyes — one was swollen completely shut and the other "only slightly open."

The man was later found on Richards Boulevard in Sacramento, and was taken into custody. He was found in possession of 0.9 grams of methamphetamine.

A 28-year old man from Higgins Road was caught by store staff as he tried to steal $43 in "Yu-Gi-Oh" trading cards from a Riverpoint Court retailer. He admitted the crime to police and was given a notice to appear in court.

May 18, 12:20 a.m.

Police responded to a suspicious car parked on the 1500-block of Maryland Avenue. An officer reports he had to "bang on the window" to wake up the two people inside. He asked them to step out and believed the man from the driver's seat was intoxicated.

That man said he had no driver's license. He also admitted to having a weapon.

"I made physical contact to search him," reported the officer, and a loaded .45 Llama handgun fell from his waistband to the street.

The man was arrested without incident. A records check of the gun's serial number showed the gun was "under observation" by the Department of Justice.

On the 2200-block of Michigan Boulevard, someone apparently tried, but failed, to break into a house while the residents were on vacation.

May 18, 3:58 p.m.

An officer watched a woman "drive in reverse over 2,000 feet on West Capitol Avenue" before entering a motel parking lot. The officer conducted a vehicle stop.

The woman did not produce a driver's license. A records check showed her license was suspended and she was on searchable probation from a stolen vehicle charge, "which she also lied about."

During a search, the officer found a large purse with a small Clorox bottle inside:

"The Clorox bottle was actually a false compartment containing contraband and suspected narcotics. Located inside the Clorox bottle were two big clear bags containing more than 50 smaller clear bags that were empty. Also located was a glass smoking pipe," along with a scale, other baggies with 7.5 grams of methamphetamine, and three pills of suspected "Ecstasy."

The 42-year old Sacramento woman went to jail.

May 18, 4:30 p.m.

A woman reported that someone had stolen her wallet, containing $1,000 and credit cards, from a car left unlocked. The thief later used at least one of the cards for a purchase at a West Capitol Avenue grocery store.

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Lone Survivor" (R) -- A team of Navy SEALs fight hopeless odds while on a mission to take out a Taliban operative. The story is based on accounts of a 2005 mission in Afghanistan that went horribly wrong. While on the hunt for Ahmed Shah, four SEALs encounter a few goat-herding civilians and make a tough ethical decision that impacts the rest of their mission. Mark Wahlberg plays Marcus Luttrell, the author of the eponymous book and -- it's no spoiler to say -- the only one to come out alive.

The movie gets off to a brisk start after a little pre-mission setup. The action sequences are grueling and relentless. The real set-piece of the action is an extended, pitched gunfight that doesn't run out of steam, just leaves you exhausted at the end.

"Robocop" (PG-13) -- Future Detroit is the proud testing site of a cutting-edge crime-fighting machine with a human heart and a permanent grimace. When police officer Alex Murphy is left for dead by thugs, his remaining bits are scooped up and put into a state-of-the-art metal body built for domination. He's got a slick tactical visor, bullet-proof body, the steadiest gun arm ever built, and an off-switch for his emotions. Robocop is effective all right, but is he still human?

Of course, this remake cannot match the tongue-in-cheekiness of the 1987 original. What once was clunky and laughable is now sleek and updated. Keeping things good on the human side are the fine performances by Michael Keaton as the conniving corporatist, Gary Oldman as the scientist whose work is being corrupted, and Samuel L. Jackson as an ultra-conservative radio nut job.

"Son of God" (PG-13) -- Scenes from History Channel's "The Bible" are mixed in with new material to create this feature-length release hitting the highlights of Jesus' life. The film follows the messiah as he rounds up apostles, heals the sick, finds his fate on Calvary and rises from the dead. This version plays it safe and light -- deeper looks into the stories are avoided and no new perspectives are brought into the storybook narrative. Christ, played by Diego Morgado, is shown as an exceedingly handsome, TV-safe savior touching people and spreading happiness through miracles.

"Plimpton! Starring George Plimpton as Himself" (NR) -- He was a goalie for the Bruins, QB for the Lions, percussionist for the New York Philharmonic, listed in the credits along with John Wayne, a best-selling author and sparring partner to the great Archie Moore -- and no, he's not that guy from the beer commercials. George Plimpton was an affluent, well-spoken writer and an innovator of participatory journalism, a style of writing that puts the author in the action. This documentary focuses on Plimpton's deeds in the 1950s, '60s and '70s, when he had front-row seats to the major events of an era.

by Samantha Shannon
(Bloomsbury USA, $17)
Reviewed by Ealish Waddell

Under the regime of Scion, having any psychic ability at all is a crime, but having a rare dreamwalking talent like Paige's means an even bigger target on your back. Paige scratches out a dangerous living reporting on others for her underworld boss, but after she accidentally kills a Scion guard, that precarious protection is shattered.

She is captured and taken away -- but instead of the execution she expects, she finds herself in a secret prison at the heart of a centuries-old conspiracy. It turns out there is an even greater power behind Scion, a godlike race called the Rephaim that wants not to destroy the voyants' powers, but to control them for their own dark purposes.

"The Bone Season" takes place in an alternate timeline that uses a dash of the supernatural to rearrange history into a completely unpredictable future. The story starts weird and just keeps getting weirder, and it requires some patience on the part of the reader to suss out how this world works.

The author claims this is the first in a planned seven-book series, so there may be a ways to go before all secrets are revealed. But the questions are intriguing enough to suggest that the answers are worth waiting for.

Splendid Strawberries

When choosing strawberries there is one important checkpoint: smell. If your prospective package of berries doesn't give you that familiar waft of sweetness, then set it back down. The other aspect to check for is mold. Strawberries are highly perishable, don't travel well and are known to start spoiling even as they sit there looking attractive. When you get home, refrigerate them, and then wash as needed.

Roasted Strawberry Jam

When cleaning strawberries, be sure to avoid soaking them in water. Strawberries are very porous and will become waterlogged and lose some of their flavor.

4 pounds ripe strawberries
1 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice or orange juice
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

2. Rinse the strawberries thoroughly. Cut off tops and carve away any discolored or mushy parts. Quarter or dice each berry.
3. Place berries on foil or a parchment paper-lined roasting pan. Mix the berries with the sugar, juice, vanilla extract, salt and pepper. Spread berries evenly across the surface of the pan.

4. Roast for approximately 2 hours, 15 minutes, stirring every 20 to 30 minutes to prevent burning and sticking, making sure to scrape the sides of the pan.

5. Remove strawberries from the pan. Allow to cool slightly before using. Pour into an airtight container and refrigerate overnight to firm. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

GO FIGURE!

by Linda Thistle

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON PROPOSED INFRASTRUCTURE FINANCING PLAN AND ESTABLISHMENT OF CITY OF WEST SACRAMENTO INFRASTRUCTURE FINANCING DISTRICT NO. 1 (BRIDGE DISTRICT AREA)

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the West Sacramento City Council on April 16, 2014, adopted its Resolution No. 14-1, in which it declared its intention to establish an infrastructure financing district (the "District"), to finance the construction and/or acquisition of capital improvements in the Bridge District Area and fixing the time and place for a public hearing on the proposed infrastructure financing plan and the establishment of the District, all pursuant to the provisions of the Chapter 2.8 of Part 1 of Division 2 of Title 5 of the California Government Code (commencing with Section 53395) (the "IFD Law"). The boundaries of the District encompass the area commonly referred to as the Bridge District Area. The facilities proposed to be financed by the District are public capital facilities. The City will use incremental property tax revenues from the City, but not from any other affected taxing entities within the IFD, to finance the facilities and intends to authorize the issuance of bonded indebtedness for the purpose of financing said facilities.

For further details, the resolution is available at the office of the City Clerk, 1110 West Capitol Avenue West Sacramento, California.

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that the City Council has fixed Wednesday, June 4, 2014, at the hour of 7:30 p.m., or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, at the City Council Chambers, 1110 West Capitol Avenue, West Sacramento, California, as the time and place when and where the City Council will hold a public hearing to consider the adoption of the infrastructure financing plan and establishment of the District. At the hearing, the testimony of all interested persons for or against the establishment of the District, the adoption of the infrastructure financing plan, or the regularity of any of the prior proceedings will be heard.

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that if, at the conclusion of the public hearing, the City Council determines to establish the District and adopt the infrastructure financing plan, the City Council will order an election to be held by the qualified electors of the District by mailed ballot, with each such elector having one vote for each acre or portion of an acre owned by the elector.

If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgage, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. ## Road alert

Caltrans is shutting down lanes along a stretch of the U.S. 50 freeway in Sacramento, and that is expected to cause trouble not only on local freeways, but on West Sacramento city streets such as Jefferson and Harbor boulevards, 5th Street, the Tower Bridge Gateway and West Capitol Avenue.

Construction is scheduled from April 22 to June 25. There is currently a break in construction through Memorial Day weekend. The first phase involves closing some eastbound lanes on U.S. 50 in downtown Sacramento, sometimes leading to backups into West Sacramento during peak hours.

For details, visit www.fix50.com.

To take a peak at how West Sacramento's roadways are handling the traffic, check out the live cameras at the city's website, www.cityofwestsacramento.org.

'Relay for Life'

The 'Relay for Life' includes relay walking and overnight camping as teams work to raise money in the fight against cancer. In West Sacramento, the Relay will attract regional teams to a 24-hour event on the weekend of June 21-22 at Our Lady of Grace School, 1990 Linden Road. Look for "WestSacRelay" on Facebook.

Summer bowling

Summer bowling has returned. Organizers promise "fun and friendship" in a league meeting 12:30 p.m. on Fridays at Capitol Bowl, 900 West Capitol Avenue. For information, call Sally, 372-0341.
